MEMORANDUM IN SUPPORT OF MOTION TO REVOKE THE DETENTION ORDER OF THE
MAGISTRATE JUDGE

JUDGE: HON. LARRY A. BURNS
COURT: COURTROOM 9
DATE: AUGUST 25, 2008

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Defendant, Christopher Black, is named in a ten count superceding criminal indictment charging a Conspiracy to Engage in Sex Trafficking of Children, Conspiracy to Coerce and Entice Juveniles into Prostitution, and eight substantive counts of Recruiting and Enticing Juveniles into Prostitution in violation of Title 18 U.S.C. §§ 371, 1591, and 2422. The superceding indictment charges Mr. Black in both conspiracy

1 counts and four of the substantive charges. The substantive charges, as filed, carry a 2 mandatory minimum sentence of ten years upon conviction.

3 On June 3, 2008, a Detention Hearing was held before the United States
4 District Court for the Western District of Texas. A report and recommendation prepared 5 by the United States Pretrial Services Office was presented to the Court at the time of 6 said hearing. The report prepared by the Pretrial Services Office set forth a 7 recommendation of release on unsecured bond in the amount of $50,000. Despite the 8 recommendation of an unsecured bond by Pretrial Services, the Magistrate Judge in 9 the Western District of Texas entered his order denying Defendant bond.

11 THE MAGISTRATE JUDGE'S ANALYSIS

12 The magistrate judge noted that "[Defendant's] parents appeared in court and 13 are willing to accept custody of their son to assure his appearance for court 14 proceedings," such that the court had "no reason to doubt that Black would appear in 15 court as required." Detention Order at 4.

16 The magistrate judge justified his order of detention based on Defendant's 17 purported danger to others, citing 1) the presumption of detention in cases involving a 18 "crime of violence" and 2) the alleged fear the victim, L.A., has of Defendant and of 19 retaliation by Defendant. Id. The magistrate judge found that "no conditions of release 20 will reasonably assure the safety of the victim." Id. The court based this decision 21 primarily on the Government's un rebutted proffer that alleged that the "13 year old 22 victim in this case, L.A., is afraid of Black and fears retaliation." Id. The judge further 23 noted that the Defendant would be residing with his parents near Camp Pendleton, in 24 "close proximity" to the victim in this case. Id. The Magistrate Judge's order provided 25 no specific details regarding the Government's proffered allegations of the victim's fear 26 of Defendant.

APPLICABLE PRINCIPLES OF LAW

18 U.S.C. §3145(b) provides that a person who is ordered detained by a magistrate judge “may file, with the court having original jurisdiction over the offense, a motion for revocation or amendment of the order.” The standard which the court is to apply in considering the release or detention of a defendant pending trial is provided in 18 U.S.C.A. § 3142, which provides for detention only if, after hearing, the judicial officer finds that “no condition or combination of conditions will reasonably assure the appearance of the person as required and the safety of any other person and the community.” 18 U.S.C.A. § 3142(e).

The Bail Reform Act (“the Act”) preserves the preference for release of the accused pending trial. See generally United States v. Salerno, 481 U.S. 739 (1987). Liberty is the norm under the Act, detention the carefully limited exception. Id. at 755.

As the Ninth Circuit has noted:

These principles accordingly govern (in a case involving a determination of pretrial detention): 1. Federal law has traditionally provided that a person arrested for a non-capital offense shall be admitted to bail. 2. Only in rare cases should release be denied. 3. Doubts regarding the propriety of release are to be resolved in favor of defendants.

U.S. v. Townsend, 897 F.2d 989, 993-94 (9th Cir.1990). The passage of the pretrial detention provision of the 1984 Act “did not...signal a congressional intent to incarcerate wholesale the category of accused persons awaiting trial.” United States v. Orta, 760 F.2d 887, 890 (8th Cir. 1985). Instead, Congress was “demonstrating its concern about a ‘small but identifiable group of particularly dangerous defendants as to whom neither the imposition [sic] of stringent release conditions nor the prospect of revocation of 1 release can reasonably assure the safety of the community or other persons.” Id.

2 (quoting S. Rep. No. 225, 95th Cong., 1st Sess. 6-7 reprinted in 1984 Code Cong. &
3 Ad.News at 3189) (emphasis added). See also U.S. v. Hir, 517 F.3d 1081, 1089 (Bail 4 Reform Act granted courts the authority to deny release to defendants who pose “an 5 especially grave risk to the safety of the community”).

6 Pursuant to 3142(e), when the case involves a an offense under 18 U.S.C. §§ 7 1591 or 2242, a rebuttable presumption arises that “no condition or combination of 8 conditions will reasonably assure the appearance of the person as required and the 9 safety of the community.” 18 U.S.C. § 3142(e). This presumption shifts a burden of 10 production to the defendant, but “the burden of persuasion remains with the 11 government.” U.S. v. Hir, 517 F.3d 1081, 1086 (9th Cir.2008). See also United States 12 v. Rodriguez, 950 F.2d 85, 88 (2d Cir.1991). When a defendant proffers evidence to 13 rebut the presumption, the presumption “remains in the case as an evidentiary finding 14 militating against release, to be weighed along with other evidence relevant to factors 15 listed in § 3142(g).” Hir, 517 F.3d at 1086.

16 When a defendant proffers evidence to rebut the presumption regarding danger 17 to the community, the court considers four factors in determining whether the pretrial 18 detention standard (that “no condition or combination of conditions will reasonably 19 assure the appearance of the person as required and the safety of the community”) is 20 met: “(1) the nature and circumstances of the offense charged; (2) the weight of the 21 evidence against the person; (3) the history and characteristics of the person, including 22 the person's character, physical and mental condition, family and community ties, 23 employment, financial resources, past criminal conduct, and history relating to drug or 24 alcohol abuse; and (4) the nature and seriousness of the danger to any person or the 25 community that would be posed by the defendant's release” Hir, 517 F.3d at 1086;
26 United States v. Cardenas, 784 F.2d 937, 938 (9th Cir.1986). A finding that no 27
28

1 condition or combination of conditions will reasonably assure the safety of any other 2 person and the community must be supported by “clear and convincing evidence.” 18
3 U.S.C. § 3142(f)(2)(B). Consistent with the intent of Congress, the Act encourages 4 release of the accused pending trial provided some condition or combination of 5 conditions can reasonably assure the appearance of the accused at trial and the safety
6 of the community or any other person. See Orta, 760 F.2d at 890-91.

7 IV. DISCUSSION

8 A. Risk of Flight

9 As noted above, Defendant proffered evidence, in the form of his parents’ 10 testimony, that rebutted the presumption that he was a flight risk. Moreover, the 11 magistrate judge concluded that it had “no reason to doubt that Black would appear in 12 court as required.” Id.

13 B. Danger to the Community or Any Other Persons

14 The magistrate deemed Defendant Black to pose a danger to the “safety of the 15 community or any other person” against which no combination of conditions of release 16 could reasonably assure. In so doing, the court relied on the presumption of 17 dangerousness and two proffers of evidence: 1) the government’s allegation that the 18 victim, L.A., was frightened of Defendant; and 2) the Defendant’s proffer that he would 19 be residing upon release with his parents in proximity to Camp Pendleton. See Id.
20 Neither alone nor in the aggregate do these factors prove by clear and convincing 21 evidence that Black poses a danger to the community or any other person against 22 which no combination of conditions of release can reasonably assure. Defendant 23 proffers that his release to home confinement in the custody of his parents in 24 Oceanside, California, combined with electronic monitoring and other safeguards as the 25 Court may suggest, would assure the safety of L.A. and the community.

26 The government’s proffered information before the magistrate judge alleges that 27

1 the victim is afraid of the Defendant and of retaliation by Defendant. The magistrate 2 judge made no indication as to the reasonableness of the victim's alleged fears, nor 3 mentioned any conduct by Defendant that would justify her fear for her safety. There is 4 no indication in the magistrate judge's order, nor in the discovery received to date from 5 the government, that Defendant ever used or threatened violence toward L.A. or any 6 other person. Defendant has no prior criminal history. See Id. at 3. There is no 7 indication in the magistrate judge's order, nor in the discovery received to date from the 8 government, that Defendant ever attempted to contact L.A. or any other alleged victim 9 subsequent to the initiation of this case.

10 Moreover, conditions of release can be crafted in a manner that would 11 reasonably assure the safety of L.A. and others in the community. Defendant suggests 12 that home confinement and electronic monitoring would assure his distance from L.A.
13 and isolation from the greater community. His release to his parents at their residence 14 in Oceanside would further assure his compliance with any restrictions this Court sees 15 fit to impose to protect L.A. and the community. His father is a Master Sergeant with 16 the U.S. Marine Corps, and there is no allegation that his parents, who would operate 17 as third party custodians of Defendant, are of questionable character in any regard.

18 V.

19 CONCLUSION

20 For the foregoing reasons, Defendant Christopher Black respectfully requests 21 that this Honorable Court revoke the Detention Order imposed in the above-styled 22 cause and enter its order admitting Defendant to bail in this jurisdiction under conditions
23 this Court deems necessary to reasonably assure his appearance at trial and the safety 24 of the community or any person.
